Donation Day Brings Big Returns.

SOME OF THE DONORS

News Brevities

News items for this column should be sent to James S. Reider, 1538 Dover Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

October 22, 1906—The returns of Donation Day are far from complete and therefore we can only give a partial report at this time If any donors do not find their name in the lists here given, they must understand that no information has been given us in their case.

We are happy to report the establishment of a new local branch in Chester, on October 3d inst., with the title of The Delaware County Local Branch Its officers are Charles Partington, Chairman; John Tarry, Secretary, and R. Reed Robertson, Treasurer. No sooner had this Branch organized than it set to work and in about a week's time raised the handsome sum of seventy-one dollars and seventeen cents ($71.17), which was its offering to the Home on Donation Day. All the money was raised by subscriptions entailing the hardest kind of work, and, considering the shortness of the time, it was very creditable work We extend our hearty congratulations to this Branch for its good work. May its future efforts continue successful and make it one of the strongest branches of the P. S. A. D.

We lack information concerning the splendid sum ($200) raised by the Pittsburg Local Branch, but we expect that due credit will be given it here or elsewhere when a report is received.

Below we append the lists of donations sent us to date.

S. G. Davidson, Treasurer of the Home, is known to have received contributions amounting to a hundred, more or less.

The P. S. A. D. voted to transfer $100 from the General Fund to the Home. That money represents surplus cash saved from membership fees. The Society will also turn over some $200 collected to reduce the mortgage on the Home.

Mr. Heyman, of New York, reported that, when his intention of visiting Philadelphia on Donation Day was known to a gentleman, he immediately handed him a dollar for the Home. This contribution is appreciated the more as coming from one from whom it was least expected, or rather, most unexpected.

The Ladies' Committee at the Home are reported to have made a good profit from serving luncheon and the sale of fancy and useful articles. It may be anywhere between $150 and $200

This is all we know, so far.

Wasn't it a lucky thirteenth of October ?

Mr. C. O. Hackman, of Pine Grove, Pa., our own native town, called on us recently. Mr Hackman is one of the most enterprising business men of the town, conducting three stores and employing five men. He is deaf and dumb, but full of life and energy.

John A. Roach took a flying trip to Baltimore, Md., on Sunday, October 7th, where he was joined by Mr. Charles H. Paxton, of Cumberland, Md., and they spent the day in sight-seeing, the Monumental City. They returned to their respective homes on the same evening.

Tributes to Anagnos.

GREAT BENEFACTOR OF BLIND SUBJECT OF HIGH EULOGY IN PROSE AND VERSE

Boston Herald, Oct. 25.

A unique and distinguished assembly at Tremont Temple yesterday afternoon honored the memory of Michael Anagnos, for 30 years the Director of the Perkins Institution for the Blind at South Boston, who died suddenly last Summer while on a visit to Roumania.

The audience was made up of the blind who came out of gratitude to one of their foremost sympathizers; of Greeks, who came to honor a famous countryman, and of distinguished representatives of philanthropy, letters, church and state, who made common tribute to the high attainments of a noted friend and citizen. Mayor Fitzgerald, Gov Guild, Bishop Lawrence, Frank B. Sanborn and Prof. J. Irving Manatt of Brown University, were among the speakers, and an original poem by Mrs Julia Ward Howe, read by the venerable woman herself, was the crowning event of the programme.

The exercises were held under the auspices of the Perkins Institution, and 170 pupils of the school were present The salesroom of the school on Boylston Street, the workshop at South Boston, and all the school connected with the institution were closed in honor of the occasion. Music was furnished by the school orchestra, composed of blind musicians, and the school chorus, consisting of blind girls The pipe organ was played by David Wood, the blind musical director of the Pennsylvania School for the Blind and organist of the Russell Conwell Church at Philadelphia.

Upon the stage was a three-quarter portrait in oil of Mr. Anagnos, surrounded by laurel, and the platform was lavishly decked with palms and American Beauty roses. Among the guests upon the platform were Gov. Guild, Mayor Fitzgerald, Mrs Julia Ward Howe, Edwin E. Allen, superintendent of the Pennsylvania School for the Blind; John F. Bledsoe, superintendent of the Maryland School for the Blind; William Endicott, Jr , treasurer of the Perkins Institution; the Hon. John Parmenides, the Greek consul; Amory I Lawrence, vice-president of the corporation; G. H. Martin, secretary of the board of education, and Prof. J. Irving Manatt, of Brown University.

MAYOR AND GOVERNOR SPOKE.

Gen. Francis H Appleton, president of the corporation, who presided, introduced Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., who said:

"It is a privilege to commemorate the services of one who loves his fellowmen. Whatever he did was done well. I do not know that anything could make him happier than what he must now know—the crowning glory of his labors—that the commonwealth this year has gone further than the instruction of blind children, and now purposes to educate and make into useful citizens the adult blind.

"The noble woman who came to his care, Helen Heller, able, intelligent, useful, valuable to the community, sits upon a state commission as a state officer, that her help and her wisdom may aid the commonwealth in its education of the unfortunate who are committed to its care.

Mayor Fitzgerald was the next speaker, and said in part:

"The name of Michael Anagnos belongs to Greece, the fame of him belongs to the United States, but his service belongs to humanity.

"It was no accident that this lover of freedom should be drawn to the home of liberty, which has opened its arms before and since, to Lafayette and Kosciusko, to Kossuth and Davitt, to John Burns and Henry George, and other liberators from many lands.

WAS NOT ASHAMED.

"It was no accident that the hand which had striven to release fettered limbs should feel themselves well occupied loosening the bandages on sightless eyes. The patriot and the teacher in this man, as in so many others, blended naturally, and I do not know which is his higher title to esteem.

"Forty years of life in Boston did not cause Anagnos to cease to be a Greek. Although his fellow-countrymen here were few, he identified himself with their interests and stood frankly, but not obtrusively, before the community as a representative of a minor people. He was not ashamed to be a hyphenated American, if to escape that reproach meant ceasing to remember of his origin

"In one respect, however, this modern Greek rejected the wisdom of the ancients. The old Spartans exposed their puny infants on Mt. Taygetus. Our modern Athens has its cradle for the frailest of these castaways, realizing that in the least of their helpless bodies there abides a glowing soul and justly fearing the wrath of heaven that should follow the sacrifice of that priceless jewel.

"It is in this character that we know Michael Anagnos best—not as a mountain rebel but as the shepherd of the sightless flock who are his chief mourners to-day The statesman and the soldiers may well envy this private citizen his wreath of tribute—the love of the afflicted among whom he walked, imparting strength, renewing hope, devising practical helps—in a word, maintaining worthily the traditions of that great school for the blind in which modern science and Christian charity all but duplicate the sweetest miracle of the Galilean."

Frank B. Sanborn, of Concord, the chief speaker, told in detail the story of Dr. Samuel Howe and the way in which he became acquainted with young Anagnos, then a Greek student at Athens, who afterward became his secretary, his son-in-law and finally his successor.

"My subject to-day," said Mr. Sanborn, "is 'Successors in Success,' and we shall find it hard to point to a better instance than the work begun, carried on and finished by Dr. Howe and his son-in-law, men so unlike in all but results, Dr. Howe was a man of genius, capable, as the epigram says of generalizing from a single instance, and of following up his theory with a practical method of working it out. He also had acquired a general experience, by serving for years, and in varied positions in the world-movement known as the Greek revolution. Mr. Anagnos has no such genius and no equivalent experience But he was one of a frugal and highly organized race, which takes to general culture as neither the American nor the ordinary Englishman readily does; and, belonging to a small nation, still held in leading-strings by the pragmatical great powers, he was not compelled to follow where the bias of a great nation should fatally carry him.

"His first initiative of sucess, beyond the daily routine of a well-managed blind school, was to conceive and put in practice a kindergarten Without giving in to the slightly sentimental view of the customary kindergarten in this country, he saw what an adjunct it could be made as a preliminary to the beautiful education instituted and made practical by Dr. Howe for the blind. He perceived also how warmly the community, and especially good women, would be likely to encourage such an addition to the Perkins Institution. The events of the past 20 years prove how just was his forethought in both these vital points. The community, responding to his constant appeal, has now built up an establishment at Jamaica Plain which, in its appointments and its results, excels any example of the kind known to me in the world.

"Mr. Anagnos claimed no credit for instructing the blind or the deaf, any more than Dr. Howe did for his services to all classes of the unfortunate. They were above the petty vanity of craving praise for acts which compelled praise from others. They made the talents of their pupils known for the information and encouragement of others, not for glory to themselves. But this modesty need not restrict us from giving them the praise due, not only from those directly benefited by their toil and their wisdom, but from us who saw them at their self imposed tasks. Death, which has closed their beneficent activity, has released us from the restraint imposed by their modesty, and now allows us to pay those tributes to their memory which the vain and the ungrateful are so ready to withhold or to ascribe to themselves"

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, whose daughter Julia married Mr. Anagnos, was then introduced, and received a flattering reception. In a low but clear voice she read the memorial poem which she wrote herself and which was listened to with greatest attention.

Vainly we listen for his tread,
Returning from a distant shore,
Here, where his fruitful days were sped,
The friend beloved is seen no more.

Truly, it was a gracious gift
That Greece vouchsafed us, when he came
With buoyant step and heart alight
To win an enviable fame.

The oracles of Hellas old,
The dream of glories yet to be
Had taught his spirit, frank and bold,
The price and worth of liberty.

He entered where a champion crowned
His noble conquests still pursued,
For him the clarion blast did sound
That stirred the elder Hero's blood.

Where souls in shadows dim abode
Ungladdened by the light of day,
His tutelary guidance showed
The light of Truth's all conquering ray;

For they should know the world so fair,
Its record brave, its wondrous plan,
And, though despoiled of Nature, share
The great inheritance of man.

Oh! friends who gather in the class
The welcome word to hear and tell,
Take with you, as you onward pass
The thought of him who loved you well.

That love which doth all ills redeem
Which seals man's noblest promise true,
The prophet's pledge, the poet's dream.
Be that his legacy to you.

PROFESSOR AND BISHOP THERE.

Prof. J. Irviug Manatt of Brown University, for 16 years a close friend of Mr. Anagnos, left his sick bed to attend the exercises.

"It is always sunrise somewhere on the globe, and the heroic age is always present somewhere," he said. "Dr. Howe was born into it here in Boston, and in rude Epirus Michael Anagnos was cradled in it. One can but feel that we have had among us a pair of Plutarch's men."

Bishop Lawrence said in part:

"The name of Mr. Anagnos has not been spread in great headlines before the people, but it is treasured in the hearts of thousands of the blind, and many thousands of their friends throughout the land, and this was to him the richest reward.

"The kindergarten is his monument. The most interesting study, however, is not of men and women in the mass, but as individuals. Martyrs, charity workers and upbuilders of the institution have very little interest as we group them together, but each studied by himself reveals the peculiar qualities of temperament, character and work.

"There was one quality in Mr. Anagnos which Dr. Howe immediately recognized as of a spirit kindred to his own; a love of freedom. For that Mr. Anagnos had written, worked and suffered. When, therefore, he came to this land he came to his own. Freed from the fret of political bonds his spirit was at liberty to give himself without check to the work that was before him.

"We Americans are perhaps too ready in these days to note the dubious qualities of those who come to our shores, and not to recognize the possible contributions that they make. Mr. Anagnos, in landing upon this shore, brought with him an inheritance of temper and form of culture with which we were unfamiliar. He had, however, that personality, strength of character and self-reliance which enabled him, while learning from us, and adapting himself to our conditions, to force into our institutions something which they had not, and which gave them variety and wealth.

VALUABLE QUALITY.

"Among other qualities the most marked was his perpetual exuberance, his perennial youth; it seemed to burst from him in his whole action, his voice. You could feel it in his finger tips; it showed itself in his vivid and perhaps florid language. Who knows how valuable that quality was to him in enabling him to strike through the blindness into the very hearts of his scholars; to reach their intelligence, to kindle their spiritual forces and to give nerve and vitality to their active senses.

"It was the personal quality that made the Perkins Institution and Kindergarten more than Institutional—they were the living expressions of thought, life and sacrifice, illustrated in Mr. Anagnos who, with his loyal teachers and helpers, received the newcomer with sympathy and led him into the large family with love and confidence."

The Rev. Nestor Souslides pronounced the benediction.

BALTIMORE.

Mr. George A. Gallein and family, of Harford County, are now comfortably domiciled in their cosy home on York Road, which they purchased last two weeks ago. They moved in last Monday, the 22d.

The Society will have a Hallow Eve Social Wednesday night, October 31st, with Mr. A. E. Feast as Chairman.

Rev. O. J. Whildin has kindly consented to lecture, before the Society, some time during the later part of November.

The male members of the Society held a German supper and smoker, which was greatly enjoyed by all. W. McElroy acted as cook, and did himself great credit. The affair will be repeated in the near future

The moving picture entertainment at the M. E. Church last Thursday night, proved a grand success socially and financially, and as a consequence Rev. D. E. Moylan is wearing the smile that won't-come-off.

"He's true to God who's true to man:
Wherever wrong is done
To the humblest and the weakest
'Neath the all-beholding sun,
That wrong is also done to us,
And they are slaves most base,
Whose love of right is for themselves,
And not for all the race."

Specimen copies sent to any address on receipt of five cents.

Notices concerning the whereabouts of individuals will be charged for at the rate of ten cents a line.

A WORD, or even a column, of praise, would hardly do justice to the continued, persistent and systematic effort of the deaf of Pennsylvania in behalf of the Home for Aged and Infirm Deaf at Doylestown, Pa.

The aggregate of dollars in the Donation Day contributions will probably run into four figures. At least eight hundred dollars has been realized.

That the educated deaf of the Keystone State should each year make such an unqualified success of the day set apart for special donations, is in itself a great credit to them. But they do more. It is not only one day in the year, but throughout the whole year, that they work and plan for the benefit and support of the refuge they have established for the aged and feeble whose strength has been spent in life's battle and who no longer are possessed of self-sustaining ability.

The high results obtained by this incorporated Society of the Deaf, would not be possible under any other system of organization. By the aid of organized "branches," nearly all the centers of population are covered with workers, having local directing heads, and working in harmony with the instructions sent out by officials of the central organization, yet in no wise hampered by any red tape that limits local plans or hampers individual action.

Each year multiplies the number of local branches and increases in great degree the number and size of contributions in support of the Home.

The deaf of Pennsylvania have solved the federation plan, in their own State, far in advance of the National Association of the Deaf, whose efforts to bring about a federation of the State organizations began in the year 1889—just seventeen years ago—and which, up to date, seems to have made no appreciable progress.

Perhaps at the Jamestown Congress next year something can be done to centralize the strength of all the State Associations of the Deaf, and to weld into one strong chain the power and influence that at present can not be effectively exerted. It might help matters if the National Association's Committee on Federation could get the personnel of every board of officers of State and city organizations, and outline to them a plan of action, inviting the presence of accredited delegates to the Congress, there to go into executive session and formulate a plan that shall have the merit of being practical in operation, harmonious in composition, and equitable in its distribution of place and power.

WHILE the loss to the profession of educating the deaf, by the resignation of Mr. Mathison from the Belleville Institution, is recognized and lamented, all of his legion of friends are rejoicing that he goes to a position which carries a salary of $7,000 a year. We warrant he did not get that much as Principal. Nevertheless, it is a matter of congratulation that men of such high abilities adorn the profession.

GALLAUDET COLLEGE.

Played a Good Game, But Lost.

HALLOWE'EN FESTIVITY.

East Wing Items.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

GALLAUDET COLLEGE, Oct. 29, 1906.—One of the largest crowds that has turned out from Kendall Green to witness an outside game for years, accompanied the Varsity to Annapolis to see the St. John's-Gallaudet game, played in the morning, and incidentally to visit the Naval Academy and take in the Navy-Bucknell game in the afternoon. There were over seventy rooters in all. President Gallaudet honored the team with his presence, making the trip in company with his daughter, Miss Katherine Gallaudet. Dr Draper, Prof. and Mrs. Hall, and Prof. Gaw also made the trip.

Although our boys lost, the crowd came back happy, for they saw what was by far the most spectacular, the hardest fought and yet the cleanest game our Varsity has been in this season. The final score after twenty and twenty-five minute halves was 16 to 11 in favor of St. John's, but Gallaudet outplayed the cadets during the greater part of the game, especially when it came to straight football and were ahead at the close of the first half.

Among other good thing which the press dispatches have to say about the game is that it was "remarkable for its perfect cleanness in spite of being so fiercely fought."

Our boys showed improvement all around after the merciless drilling Capt Horton gave them during the week, and confidence that the success of their offense against Western Maryland inspired. Capt. Horton was unable to practice with his men last week, as he has not even now recovered from the injury received in the G. W. U. game. This gave him a chance to devote all his time to coaching, his men and he used the opportunity to the best advantage.

Gilbert Erickson, '03, was taken along as Gallaudet's official, in the game, and both he and official chosen by St. John's were perfectly impartial in their work. In past years the gridiron battles between St. John's and Gallaudet have been conspicuous for their exceptional cleanness, and the conduct of both players and officials in this game is a gratifying assurance that these relations will continue.

The game was replete with sensational plays, the majority being made by the Buff and Blue.

Once St. John's punted so high that all the cadets were near the ball when it came down. Gallaudet failed to handle the punt and it bounded back towards the cadets' goal into the arms of Underhill. The big fullback had a clear field and a touchdown would have resulted from the fluke, but for his slowness of foot. He was tackled after making fifty yards. Stealing forward passes seems to be the forte of Hower, for when St. Johns tried it once on his end he got the ball and made forty yards before going down. Shanklin responded with good gains whenever called upon to carry the ball, and was used often. The interference for his runs was the best the Buff and Blue has shown this year, and when that failed the speedy right-end again and again shook off the first cadet tacklers. Although a light man he is learning to use the straight arm, with good effect. Hower also made good gains from the other end and Kutzleb and Mosey gained consistently. Sharp did his share of carrying the ball, but his failure to follow interference lessened his effectiveness. Cadwell was back in the game, and played up to the good form he showed in earlier games. He was mainly responsible for Gallaudet's first touchdown.

St John's first touchdown came through Gallaudet's failure to handle the kick. The ball struck in part of O'Donnell, and bounded over his head, and across the goal line, where a cadet fell on it. The try at goal succeeded.

Gallaudet had worked the ball rapidly down the field, Shanklin, Kutzleb, Hower, Sharp, and Mosey carrying the ball.

Sharp tore off ten yards but ran away from his interference, was thrown so heavily that he fumbled, St. John's getting the ball within ten yards of their own goal. The Cadets were forced to punt. Cadwell blocked the kick and the ball rolled behind the goal-line where Shanklin fell on it for a touchdown. Try at goal succeeded. Score 6—6.

Gallaudet soon afterwards got the ball on St. John's five-yard line. Here the Cadets held like a stone wall for two downs. On the third rush Mosey aided by good interference slipped through left tackle for a touchdown, leaving the two teams piled in a heap.

Goal failed, Score 11 to 6 in favor of Gallaudet.

The three coaches of St. John's gathered their respective men around them and gave them some valuable advice during the intermission.

The Cadets went into the second half with several changes in the line-up and used a different style of play.

Abandoning straight football almost entirely, they took to punting and forward passes.

A successful forward pass resulted in a touchdown, from which goal was kicked, making the score 12 to 11, in favor of the Cadets.

Later, when the Buff and Blue was on St. John's 30-yard line, O'Donnell tried a drop kick, but the oval went under the cross bar.

Trying a place kick on Gallaudet's 25-yard line, St. John's succeeded adding four points to their score. Gallaudet had a splendid chance of winning out in the last few minutes of play. They made first down on St. John's 5-yard line, but on the next play the Cadets' left tackle got through and threw Kutzleb back for several yards' loss.

Gallaudet was unable to make up for the lost distance, this enabled St. John's to get the ball on downs and punt it out of danger.

The great weakness of our team in this game was failure to handle punts. It was punting and recovering the ball which enabled St. John's to get within striking distance of our goal for the place kick and the touchdown which lost us the game. The son of Governor Warfield, of Maryland, played a good game at half for the Cadets.

O'Donnell ran his team with fine judgment, while Borderly, the opposing quarter, did brilliant dodging in open field running.

The line-up of the team was:

GALLAUDET		ST. JOHNS
Hower	L. E.	Bosley, Bowen
Sharp	L. T.	Gwynne
Isaackson	L. G.	Clark
Bell	C.	Arnold
Cadwell	R. G.	Jones
Vinson	R. T.	Quinby
Shanklin	R. E.	Brady
O'Donnell	Q. B.	Borderly
Kutzleb	L. H. B.	Warfield
Mosey	R. H. B.	Stone, Ruhl, Magruder, Johnson
Underhill	F. B.	Stevens

Bucknell and the Navy played a game that was a rare treat to those who understand the sport, neither side being able to score though each team in turn made first down with the ball a few yards from the opposing goal.

Warren J. Hoverstick, '07, has resigned the position of manager of the football team, in order to give more time to his studies. It is to be regretted that this step was made necessary, as he has proven himself a capable, and conscientious manager, and his efforts in behalf of the players and Association have aroused much favorable comment.

The student body assembled on the Chapel steps Thursday afternoon, and were photographed by Official Photographer Malloch, '08. It was intended to photograph the classes also, but Old Sol came out to gaze upon the group of "Ducks" trying to pose while the "Uppers" peppered them with crayon, and after much muttering, perspiring and waiting, the "Mad Mullah" got real mad, packed his camera and lit out for the dark room, whence he later emerged with two high-class negatives and a radiant smile.

Mr. Lyman Steed, '06, Normal of the Baltimore Institution, paid Kendall Green friends a visit Sunday.

The Committee on Arrangements for the annual dance in honor of the football warriors has been chosen. It is composed of Messrs. Binkley, '07, Chairman, Williams, '08, Holliday, '09, and Jones, '10.

EAST WING ITEMS.

The Jollity Club gave its annual Hallowe'en party, Friday evening, the 26th, as the 31st falls in the middle of the week. It was held in the library, which was appropriately decorated with the usual Jack-o-lanterns, apples and autumn foliage. Various contests were arranged and prizes awarded. The first—"Hidden peanuts," won by Miss Johnson, '09, was a Jack-o-lantern doll. The second—"Blinded art," drawing of a ghost, by Miss Tade, '07, was a plaster skull filled with bon-bons. The third—"Poetry," by Miss Rooth, '10, was a mantle ornament. The fourth—"biting suspended apples," by Miss Northrop, '08, was an apple pincushion. A fifth, "guessing noses," by Miss Parker, '10, was a flying imp.

Refreshments were then served. Besides those purchased by the club, a large basket of apples was given by Mr. Fowles.

The first literary meeting of the O. W. L. S., for the present college years was held in the library, Saturday evening, at eight. The program was one of the best, we have had for a long time. Below is the program:

How Witch Hazel Became Famous.

Once upon a time there dwelt in a far-off land a poor wood-cutter and his wife. They had an only son whose name was Hansel. His parents were very poor and could hardly earn enough to support themselves. When Hansel was at the age of twelve, his parents sent him out into the world to seek his fortune.

There was a large and dense forest a few miles distant from Hansel's home. Hansel wandered through the forest all day, and as the night was drawing in he sought a place to rest. Tired, cold and hungry as he was, he made his way to a large oak tree.

As the shades of night grew darker he noticed a light gleaming in the distance. He got up and made his way toward it. He soon found it came from the window of a hut. Hansel knocked at the door, and it was opened by a beautiful maiden who bade him welcome but warned him to be careful. Hansel had come to the house of a wicked witch. The witch was not at home at the time Hansel arrived. She had left the girl in charge of the house. The witch called herself Hazel.

When the young maid heard Witch Hazel returning home, she gave Hansel a sharp sword and told him to stand behind the door, and when the witch entered, to cut off her head instantly. Hansel did as he was told and cut off her head. The maiden then led him to the cellar where the witch kept many things. She presented him with a small bottle of a liquid like pure water, which she said would cure nearly every disease. Hansel thanked her and named the liquid "Witch Hazel" after the witch whom he had slain. The bottle of Witch Hazel could never be emptied but remained full all the time.

A few years afterwards he married the maiden who had told him to kill the wicked witch. The maiden was no other than a lovely princess whom the witch had stolen from her parents. They went back to her father's kingdom and in a few years became the king and queen. Hansel gave his parents a fine home and plenty of money. They lived happily all their lives.

Hansel gave his marvelous medicine free to the poor of all countries. He and his wife lived a long and happy life.

The name of the wicked witch will live as long as the famous Witch Hazel is used. The Witch Hazel atones for the sins of the witch.—Cal. News.

A Distinguished Trio

The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is fond of relating an incident that occurred while he and Lord Rosebery were returning from the theatre one night.

While crossing the street they were accosted by a ragged boy who, after sweeping the mud from their path, asked for alms.

Lord Rosebery was about to give the boy a coin when an idea struck him. "My boy," said Rosebery, "if you will hit that policeman a swat on the back with your muddy broom I will give you ten shillings." Prompt to the word the boy crept in back of the officer and raising his broom struck him in the back, then turned and ran, but to the dismay of Rosebery the officer caught the boy after a chase of a few yards.

Not wanting to leave the boy in a fix Rosebery tried to fix things up with the officer, but the worthy gentleman would not listen, and took them all three up to the station.

They were then taken before the Judge of this station and after surveying them through his glasses he took down a book and turning to Chamberlain asked his name. "Hon. Joseph Chamberlain," was the reply, and the Judge smiled.

Rosebery responded also with his full title, "Lord Rosebery."

The boy was next and stepping to the front he drew himself up to his full height and waited for the usual question, "Your name."

"My name?" said the boy. "Well Judge I'm not the kind as what goes back on me pals. I'm the Duke of Wellington."

NEW ENGLAND.

[Any New England News or business for the DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL may be sent to Geo. C. Sawyer, 93 W. Seldon St., Mattapan, Mass.]

The pretty home of Mr and Mrs. W. H. Perry, at 41 Norton Street, Dorchester, was the scene of a "Hallowe'en" party, given by Mr. W. E. Shaw, Saturday evening, October 28th. Carefully selected from a list of six hundred deaf persons, whose names and addresses be collected in New England during last summer, be issued over seventy-five invitations to those he considered the cream of the society, and nearly every one responded.

While the party was an enjoyable affair, it was a case of "If you will tickle me, I will tickle you too." The invited guests were invited to bring cakes and fruit, and the host to furnish the fun. Consquently there was an abundance of cakes and fruit, and a good lot of merriment, though it was a pretty hard job for Mr. Shaw almost unaided to give the party a good time.

Mr. J. T. Tillinghast, the sage of New England, I do not remember his age, notwithstanding my repeated inquiries; it may be 75, 80, or 90 years, but to be sure he does not look older than sixty years, is still hale and hearty as evidenced by his enjoyment at the party.

Among the several novelties shown by Mr. Shaw was the Greek fire, the color of which flame reflected on the faces of those surrounding the fire, which made them appear deathly pale. The timid ones could not stand the "horror" of seeing each other's deathly appearance.

Another novelty was the shooting with the nose in a pumpkin as a target. The ladies doing the firing first, but like women, they were poor "bullseye hitters," except Mrs. Lawrence Clark, and she won a prize. Then came the gentlemen, who one after another took all the remaining prizes.

Two photographic pictures of the gathering were taken by Mr. F. Bigelow, one in the dining-room, and the other outdoors on the front steps.

Among those tickled were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. John Tillinghast, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Clark, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. James Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Triph, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. McNeil, Mrs. Chas Mekens, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Jones, Misses Alice Jennings, Ella Moore, M. Smith, Nellie Powers, Belle Potter, Gertrude Acheson, Emma Marden, Hattie White, Carrie Tibbetts, Annie Helmboldt, Annie Brodbine, Sadie McClellan, Stella Pickle, Alice Crane, Elsie Stone, Nellie Green, Margaret Short, Blanche Benoit.

Mr. George C. Sawyer, and daughter, Messrs. Sanford Bray, Joseph Bahr, Emil Cole, H. Leary, Henry Babbitt, Fred Tibby, William Browne, M. E. Howard, P. S. Creamer, W. Acheson, E. A. Acheson, James Trainor, Thomas Cryan, E. E. Marden, A. B. Meachan, Victor Parson, Herman Perkins, Harry Jordan, Harry Gleason, Michael Gaines, William Abbott, Walter Morse, John Dunbar, and J. E. Haggerty.

Frand Dupree, of Lawrence, lost the ends of his right thumb and forefinger while working on a buzz planer, at Furber & Davis Machine Works, in North Andover, last week. He, being a carpenter by trade, is fortunate for not having lost his entire fingers, which would have rendered his right hand useless in handling a hammer or any other tool.

P. Frank Packard, son of Rev. P. W. Packard, of Salem, and Miss Glines, a well known teacher of Beverly were united in marriage at the latter's home in North Beverly, Wednesday eve, October 24th. Over two hundred guests were present, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Chapman, of Salem, Mrs. M. Wright, and her sister Miss Lafferty, of Reading.

The bridal couple will make their home with the groom's parents at 6 Dearborn Street, Salem.

In response to an invitation by Miss Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Cross, of Beverly, last Thursday evening, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs M. J. O'Neil, Mrs. P. S. Bowden, and Mrs. C. E. Thumith helped her and her mother in celebrating Mr. Cross' fifty-second birthday anniversary, at his home on Washington Street, by playing whist games, after which a light collation was served to the guests.

Hiram Brown, formerly of Rock Bottom, Mass., has selected Boston for his new field in canvassing, and will probably stay here for several years. He has been going from place to place all over the country, for the last few years.

Information came from a lady connected with the Horace Mann School, that a high school is proposed for the deaf, and is to be built on the Fenway, at Back Bay, Boston. For want of confirmation, your correspondent inquired of the Secretary of the School Committee by telephone this morning, and found that no one at the secretary's office knew of such plans.

It is true that for a long time many graduates of the Horace Mann School have been sent to various high schools in Boston; a new and larger school building is now building, a stone-throw from the new Harvard Medical College on the Fenway; the Horace Mann school now as it is on Newbury Street is overcrowded; and the School Committee has been comtemplating its removal to larger quarters. Probably some authorities, if not the school Committee, saw the necessity of a separate high school for the deaf; have planned to move the Horace Mann School to the new building on the Fenway, and add a new High School Department. If the proposed high school is a fact regardless of whatever plans is made, it will be hailed with delight by those ambitious for higher education; but let us hope that the combined system will be used in the high school. The project should not be passed without any effort on the part of any one interested in the education of the deaf by the combined system, to convice the school authorities of the importance of the combined system.

Mr. Wickens was saved from being tickled by a cold in his eye and staid at home, and so was Mrs. G. C. Sawyer by a toothache.

Prof. G. O. Fay, of "Old Hartford," as usual, had a good crowd at the Boston Deaf-Mute Society, last Sunday. The subject of his sermon—"Christian Character"—taking for a text: "God hath not given us a spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." Among his many allusions he spoke of Collins Sawhill, of Pittsburg, a pupil of Prof. Fay when he was Principal of the Ohio Institution, as having worked for Carnegie for twenty-five years, and was rewarded by a good sum of money given to him by Mr. Carnegie. Prof. Fay stated that he has been among the deaf for forty-seven years, and thanked Dr. Patterson, of Ohio, for starting him in his work among the deaf.

At the conclusion of the services, Mr. F. W. Bigelow announced in behalf of Mrs. E. W. Frisbee, that the St. Andrew's Mission has moved its headquarters to the Parish House of the Trinity Church on Copley Square, and its first Sunday services will take place there next Sunday. The Parish House is the same place where Mrs. George A. Holmes' fair for the Home was held two years ago.

Rev. Mr. Packard has been noticed to have shortened his sermons lately. Some of his impatient auditors may be relieved to hear this bit of news. Short prayers are as effective as the long ones.

The Gallaudet A C. team, crippled as it was last Saturday afternoon, suffered a crushing defeat, by a score of 33 to 0, in a football game with the Dorchester A. C., formerly the Suffolks.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smeison is visiting her sister at Portland for her health, and expects to be back to Mr. Goldsmith's home in November.

As usual, Mr. Almos Smith presented the Home two barrels of picked apples. He has about four hundred barrels of best picked Baldwin apples, waiting for higher prices. His latest guests were Mrs W. H. Goldsmith and her daughter, Miss Emily. The latter is still teaching at Franklin, N. H.

Mr. J. C. Chaplin seemed to have had hard luck this summer, having had several mishaps with his own built motorboat, and illness in his family, though not serious.

Among these from distant places at the Boston Society, were Mr. Geo. Porter, of Spencer, Mass., whose smile-won't-come-off—in fact, you never would see him here and there without a smile—and also Messrs Frank Williams and Edwards, of Haverhill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rudolph find themselves basking in the sun all the time in their new home, at 103 Bower Street, contrary to their twelve year confinement in darkness and dampness at their home on Burrell Street.

Accuracy.

The teacher can hardly do a better service for his pupils than to insist upon accuracy in all that is done. No matter whether it is sweeping the room, cleaning the blackboard, spelling a word, solving a problem in arithmetic making a figure in geometry, making a drawing of a plant, giving a rule in grammar, making a statement in a recitation, or anything else, there is always one right way, and perhaps a great many wrong ways. "About right" is still wrong, and right and wrong are opposed to each other. There is a profound truth in the old proverb, that "What is worth doing at all, is worth doing well." If a word is used that does not convey he exact idea, do not accept it; insist upon the exact word. If a solution in arithmetic has a slight error, do not say "That will do, I see you understand the principle." Insist that the work shall be made just right before it is accepted. Do not accept slovenly reading of a sentence, or a slovenly pronunciation of a word.

Train the pupil in all ways to form the habit of being exact. Create, if possible, such a habit of accuracy and exactness in your school-room that anything which is not exact will cause a jar. Do not suffer yourself to be misled by the fact that it takes time to be accurate. Time is given us to use, and, in the school-room, time can be put to no higher use than in forming habits of thorough-going accuracy. In order to train pupils to habits of accuracy, the teacher will need to exercise a deal of patient discipline with himself. He can not afford to speak before he thinks, either in instructing, or directing, or disciplining. Do not think of accuracy as elevating little things to a place that is too high. All great things are made of little things; according to the physicist the mountain is made of atoms.

Do not harbor the thought, nor allow the pupils to do so, that if you have the principle, no matter how you do the work; if you mean well, it does not make so much difference how you act; if you have the right idea, it is of little consequence how you express it. The fact is, these re-act upon each other; care in expression helps to clearness of idea or thought; a careful working according to principle makes the principle still clearer; a careful endeavor to carry out a good purpose makes the purpose all the stronger. One of the greatest benefits of manual training in our schools is the discipline it gives in exactness of execution; which it always does when the work is properly done.—Selected.

How To Make Life Happy.

Take time; it is no use to foam or fret or do as the angry housekeeper who has got hold of the wrong key, and pushes, shakes and rattles it about the lock until both are broken and the door is still unopened.

The chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex us, and in cultivating our undergrowth of small pleasures.

Try to regard present vexations as you will regard them a month hence.

Since we cannot get what we like, let us like what we can get.

It is not riches, it is not poverty, it is human nature that is the trouble.

The world is like a looking-glass. Laugh at it and it laughs back; frown at it and it frowns back.

Angry thoughts canker the mind and dispose it to the worst temper in the world—that of fixed malice and revenge. It is while in this temper that most men become criminals.

Try to speak some kind word or do some kind deed each day of your life. You will be amply repaid.

Set your work to song.—Selected.

Reading Made Easy.

In a study of the physiological aspect of reading the curious fact has been brought out that the characteristic features of letters are found for the most part in the upper halves, so that as the reader's attention in here directed he is often able to read a line with the lower half of the letters covered. It has, accordingly, occurred to some French scientists that some considerable improvements could be made in typography, working along these lines, and that increased legibility and rapidity of reading would result. Some of these suggestions have received a practical application in some European advertising signs, where legibility is a prime essential, and the results have been most satisfactory.—Harper's Weekly.

NEW YORK.

An Impressive Wedding Ceremony.

FUN ON HALLOW EVE.

News of the Week.

News items for this column should be sent direct to the DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL, Station M, New York.

A few words of information in a letter or on a postal card is sufficient. We will do the rest.

Amid all the beautiful and solemn impressiveness so characteristic of the marriage ritual of the Catholic Church, Mr. Peter F. Reddington and Miss Laura A. Binning were made man and wife last Sunday night, in the Church of St. Cecilia, on West 106th Street, New York City, Rev. M. R McCarthy of St. Francis Xavier's, officiating. Never did couple embark aboard the good ship matrimony for the voyage down the stream of life under more auspicious circumstances. A host of relatives and friends were in attendance at the church, conspicuously being a delegation from the Brooklyn Club, of which Mr. Reddington is one of the most promiuent and popular members.

The bride, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Lulu Heard, as maid of honor, was beautifully and becomingly attired in a white net, trimmed with handsome lace and medallions, and wore a long flowing tulle veil. The bridesmaid was similarly attired, and each carried a huge bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses and smilax.

After the wedding, the newly married couple held a reception and received the congratulations of their friends at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wm. K. Binning, where a dainty repast was served.

Those noted among the guests and some of the wedding presents received were: From Dr. J D. Sullivan, an uncle of Mr. Reddington, a handsome Morris Chair; Mrs. W. J. Skelley, an aunt, a pair of Bisque vases; Mr. and Mrs Bert Mitchell, Columbus, O., dainty ornamented covers; Mrs W. McNulty, pearl china set; Mr. John D. Shea, china tea set; Mr. and Mrs. J. Kennedy, china berry set; Mrs M. Clarke, vase; Mr and Mrs. H Pierce Kane, silver brush and comb set; Mr. and Mrs Geo. D. Kinsey, silver berry spoon; Mr. and Mrs. Geo N. Donovan, picture; Mr. and Mrs. Heard, lace bed set; Miss Sweeney, silver sugar tongs; Mr. and Mrs James Russell, silver cake tray; Mr. and Mrs. Reddington, white ash bedroom suite; Miss M. Austin, china salad bowl; Mr Frank Ovies, silver fruit dish; Mrs. Sweeney, gold clock; Mr. and Mrs. Daly, table clothes and napkins; Miss Mary Reddington, dressing cushion; Miss Julia Reddington, silver knives and forks; Mr. and Mrs. Gurgan, spread; and checks for $25 each from the Brooklyn Club, Dr. Heard and Mr. Nulty.

Mr. Reddington is an old Fanwood and Westchester boy, having attended both schools, while the bride is one of the most charming graduates of the Lexington Avenue School.

A cosy flat on Dekalb Avenue, Brooklyn, is in readiness where the young couple will settle down after a short honeymoon.

Owing to changes in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, the deaf congregation have started with their work a little later than usual this season, but now the pendulum is swinging nicely into its former course, and shortly the healthy and vigorous series of lectures and socials will be announced from time to time. For the present the early Sunday service will be omitted and the Bible Class meet at 8 o'clock in the evening. The Society is at a manifest disadvantage in the absence of a pastor who can talk in their own language and work among them. As it is now, all the work devolves upon the individual members, and right here it is proper to state that there is no more loyal band than this little flock of Presbyterians who are waiting hopefully for the right man to be installed as their pastor.

The Brooklyn Club held a Hallowe'en Social at the club rooms on October 27th. The people watched the pool tournament between Walter B. Taylor and Frank Hayden. The former won by a score of 100 to 81. Games followed and then regular Hallowe'en evening refreshments were served. All went home happy, reporting having had a good time. The club will have a dramatic reading by Dr. T F. Fox, on Saturday, November 10th.

Misses Grace and Helen, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Meinken, started on the road with the Annie Russell Company, which is playing "A Midsummer Night's Dream." They first show at Philadelphia, and get to Dallas, Tex., by December 1st. Then the company goes to Mexico and California. About February 1st, they will be at the Astor Theatre, this city, for six weeks.

Miss Freda Kugler died Thursday night, October 25th, after a lingering illness, aged 20 years. Last spring she went to Bridgeport, Ct., hoping the change would benefit her, but disease had made great inroads, and death was a merciful release. She was a lovable girl, bright and vivacious.

Theodore S. Rose will complete a half century of life on the 14th of November. He looks young and robust and has no gray hairs on his head up to date. The only criticism that can be levelled at "Teddy" Rose, is that he is a confirmed bachelor.

Mr Aymerick, who since graduating from the New York Institution in the sixties had lived in Cuba, but who again made New York his residence during and since the Spanish war, has returned to Cuba to live permanently, because of failing health.

Mr. Jacob Kesselman, last Sunday celebrated the 23d anniversary of his birthday, at the home of his relatives Quite a good number of deaf mutes attended the birthday feast.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Stolowitz on October 15th. This is their fourth girl. A party will be given in the baby's honor, which will be attended by a score of realatives and friends.

Charles Holton, a graduate of the Belleville (Canada, Out.) Institution, has been working in this city, for the past three years, as a draughtsman.

The Deaf-Mute.

St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It is usually deemed a very great affliction to be deprived of speech and hearing, and yet there are occasions when we almost wish that others were dumb or we ourselves temporarly without hearing; for we hear much—oh, so much, that is unpleasant.

And it is a fact that very generally the deaf-mute is not only quick and bright in other regards but that he is generally cheerful and happy. We do not remember to have met one—certainly we never knew one who was sour or morose. Hence it is not only interesting but—to us—it is really a pleasure to meet with them personally in a social way, or to see them in convention or religious service. Very recently through the courtesy of our foreman Mr. Wm. Stafford, we attended a State convention at the Schuyler Memorial Hall, on Locust Street, and the occasion was not only pleasant but but profitable as as well. And no one looking upon the bright and enthusiastic crowd, a great majority of whom participated with manifest interest in the proceedings, would have thought of affliction or deemed them unhappy. For the most part they were young, well dressed and of as fine personnel as the average city audience. By the gracious courtesy of the accomplished lady teacher of the Gallaudet School, at 3435 Henrietta Street, who kindly acted as our interpreter, we not only kept in touch with the proceedings, but incidentally learned a great deal of the individual members of the body and their business and social relations. She also introduced us to Rev J. H Cloud, of the Episcopal Mission to the Deaf, and also principal of the city public school of the deaf. He opened the exercise of the convention with the Lord's prayer in the sign language. The particular objects of the meeting were the election of officers for the ensuing year; the reception of new members and canvassing ways and means for building a home for aged and helpless mutes.

The language is practically twofold: For all ordinary purposes both on the platform or in conversation it is a sign language—a single or combined movement of the land or hands indicating an entire sentence, but anything out of the ordinary, any proper name used in introduction or any word not well understood must be spelled out letter by letter. And there again is a difference, for one or both hands may be used in spelling, but to use both is much the more expeditious. It follows that in order to ordinary communication there must be light. But they easily communicate with each other in darkness by the touch of hand and there are some who under peculiar circumstonces become able to understand correctly by laying the fingers upon the mouth of some familiar friend or relative who can speak. The mere movement of the lips becomes intelligible to the touch; of course, it can be interpreted even more easily by the eye.

There are in the State of Missouri some 3000 mutes, and in St. Louis about 300 of all ages Very few of these are born deaf—generally it is the result of disease, usually measles or scarlet fever. And even when a child has learned to talk well, if the hearing is lost, the child will soon cease to speak, probably for the reason that not being able to hear they cannot modulate to pronounce a word correctly—the language becomes an unintelligible jargon. But very generally before this, one becomes sensitive to criticism or ridicule, especially in the case of children, and refuse to attempt speech. But where deafness is congenital with parents—that is, where they are born deaf, the children are usually if not invariably born without hearing.

The Catholics have a school for girls at 18th and Cass Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. Also one for boys at Longwood, Mo. Another is a public school at corner Compton and Henrietta to which we have already referred In general, these schools teach all ordinary branches, and the State school at Fulton gives several hours daily to manual training.

In some cases they are also taught to speak, but it may be doubted whether this is useful or indeed practical; since not being able to hear they cannot possibly modulate the voice.

It is probable, we think, that they are more than usually interested in rellgion and one regrets that more is not being done for them, especially by Methodism, which, as far as we know, has nowhere a mission to this class. In our State the Catholic scools are properly missions, and Lutherans have a mission at 21st and Benton, St. Louis, Mo. The Episcopal Church has a mission at 13th and Locust, as already indicated.

TROY, N. Y.

Clarence A. Boxley has returned home from an extended trip through Canada and Western New York, by way of Lake George and Lake Champlain, to Montreal, and through the St. Lawrence River and across Lake Ontario to Rochester. On returning, he made several stop overs at Syracuse and Utica, where he has friends to visit, and also at Rome, where he used to attend school. He related a funny experience he had in Montreal. He was skinned out of five cents in paying the fare on a trolley car. Unlike the system in this country, the conductors in Montreal are "armed" with a cash-box, something like a slot in the machine, in which a passenger is expected to drop a nickel for his fare But Mr Boxley had a dime—the smallest change he could give—and put it in the box, expecting the return of the other half-dime, that is five cents in change but the conductor went away and said not a word. When Mr. Boxley reminded the conductor of the change money due him, the latter said with a shrug of his shoulders that he could not take it out of the box, and added that had Mr. Boxley handed him the dime, for change, he could have given him the desired change out of his pocket.

Mrs. C. Augustus Smith has quite recently returned home from a two weeks' visit in Rochester, N. Y., as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Gibbs. Mrs Smith is expecting a visit from Miss McClurg, of Rochester, in the latter week of this month

Rev. H. A. Van Vallen is going to attend the annual meeting of the State Missionaries of the Episcopal Church, to be held in Albany, N. Y., on November 15th He will be accompanied by his wife, who has several social engagements to fulfill during their stay of a few days.

Martin M. Taylor, formerly of Hoosick Falls, N.Y., has moved his family to Kalamazoo, Mich., where he has secured a lucrative position at job printing.

Hiram Brown has been ill with a stubborn cough, due to the irritation of the throat, which has failed of being cured.

Frank Shanissey, a pupil at the Rome School, has been in Troy on a few days' visit, presumably in search of employment.

"All for Troy and Troy for all" is the popular slogan these days in political speeches. Be a good Trojan for all time.

News of All Sorts

[News items for this column may be sent to our Ohio News Bureau, care of M A. B. Greener, 993 Franklin Ave., Columbus, O.

October 27, 1907—The Day P. Club, with invited guests hied themselves over to Grand View Saturday afternoon, where Miss Ethel Zell did the honors of entertaining the party, and this she did in a manner enjoyable to all. Part of the afternoon was spent in out door games, plenty of room about the premises, and then came supper—one of the country kind, to which all hands did justice. The party broke up at eight, and Miss Zell was voted a No. 1 entertainer. The following were there: Mrs. Zell, Mrs. Zorn, Mrs. Clum, Mrs. Mayer; Misses Zell, Biggam, Lamson, Edgal, McGregor, and McFadden, Messrs. Zorn, Schory, and Zell.

The game between the Independents, and Dennison University teams, Saturday, was taken by the latter 34 to 0, though the Independents tried hard to make a good showing. The Dennison boys are all heavy weights, and hence had an easy thing to handle. Our boys were well treated while there, being shown through the University buildings and over the grounds.

Mr. P. P. Pratt went up to the Home, Sunday, to conduct services He was accompanied by Mr George Surber, who had never seen the place. He was much pleased with it, and says he can now work the better for it by telling his friends the kind of place it is, and the worthy people sheltered there.

Mr. Byers has purchased a lot of corn at a low price, and also eight or ten pigs to fatten, and kill during the winter.

Clifford Rose was called to Granville, Tuesday, on account of his sister Grace being quite sick. His aged mother lives there.

Mr. Showalter went down to Dayton, Saturday evening, to visit Mrs. Showalter, and also attend to some business It is likely Mrs. Showalter will come to Columbus to live about the first of December.

Mr. and Mrs Boylan, of Ann Arbor, came to Columbus, Saturday to help root for the Michigan University team in its game with Ohio State University. It was a hot one, the score being 6 to 0 in favor of the "Wolverines." Mr. and Mrs. Boylan called upon Mr. and Mrs P. P. Pratt during their stay in town, and also visited the Institution. They think the chapel and dining room are especially fine.

The Wheeling Guild, composed of deaf, is in a flourishing condition. The latest member added is Mr George Cannon, of Martin's Ferry. The members are still busy raising money for the proposed church for the deaf, near Wheeling. The fund for it has reached about $1,500. Contractors have been sending in bids, the lowest thus far is $1,600. It is expected that the contract will be let soon, and work begun on the structure immediately, so as to have it completed by Christmas.

The treasurer of the Guild recently received $18.90, as a contribution to the Church fund from Messrs. Frank Shaw, Charles Blackburn and Charley Robinson, all of Steubenville, Ohio. Any one from here or elsewhere desiring to help along the good work by a contribution to the fund will be welcomed to do so, and in after years, it will be a satisfaction to those doing so, for they can point to the fact that they assisted in the erection of the house of worship.

At a recent meeting of the St. Matthew's Sewing Guild, the following officers were elected:

Mrs. Samuel N. Corbett, President; Ada Anderson, Treasurer; Daisy Littleton, Secretary; Purchasing Committee, Miss Elizabeth Steenrod, Miss Nellie D. Corbett and Mrs Lucy Bremer.

The baseball column of the Despatch had the following Thursday evening:—

A fan wants to know whether George Kihm ever played with a major league baseball club or not. He did not, but it's an interesting story of how near the came doing so. He was playing with a New York State league club in 1899 or 1900 (the exact date is not at hand). He had been secured by the Boston Club and was to report on the following day. That was about the middle of the season. In scooping up a grounder he broke a finger in his throwing hand and was out of the game for weeks. Boston patched up her hole on the infield and Kihm never reported, going to the coast

Rev. A W. Mann preached at Trinity Church Chapel Sunday morning, and in the afternoon conducted chapel service at the institution, having as his subject "Carelessness."

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were down from Worthington Sunday, to attend Rev. Mann's services. Also Mrs. Minnie Smale Barton, of Delaware, and Frank Cook of the same place. The latter has been working for the past eighteen years in Riddle, Graff Cigar Co., as a roller. Mr. Barton has been working in a Toledo printing office the past year, where work is more steady and wages better than in the staid old town of Delaware.

Ray Conkling, whom everybody hereabouts thought was digging into Latin, Algebra and "sich," at Gallaudet, caused a surprise here Saturday, by his showing up, being on the way to his Cincinnati home.

People out this way are simply laughing at the proposed boycott of the JOURNAL by the Chicago branch of the Fraternal Society of the Deaf.

For ourselves, we are sorry for them, for they will lose so many good things they have been wont to find in the columns of the only representative paper of the deaf. By the way, the F. S. D. has been in the boycotting business for some time, for one does not see any more in the Michigan Mirror, and the ad that used to be displayed by them in other deaf publications. There are good reasons for that Complusory. It's contrary to law in some of the States for such orders to exist therein. And in Michigan particularly. Pretty soon we shall hear of the members boycotting their order under necessity. And to go a little further the members will also have to boycott the Judge and Jury of the Criminal Court of Chicago, for last week the Carter case came up, was tried, and twelve good men and true cleared the man of the charge that he had appropriated to himself some seven hundred dollars of the F. S. D. funds. What is more, judgment is brought against a certain member of the order for $45, and the order itself will have to meet an expense of $1000 in the case.

Superintendent Jones has been receiving many congratulatory letters over his vindication from the base charges brought against him. The Dayton Ladies' Aid Society and Advance Society of the same city were among the first to offer their congratulations. The Committee of the State Board of Charities, which investigated the charges, made its reports to the Governor Tuesday. It suggested that the affidavits of the discharged employes containing charges against Superintendent Jones, be turned over to the Attorney General for such action as he thinks best, and that Tetlow be made an example of, as a protection to other State officials.

It is also understood that the report contains a recommendation that the legislature take cognizance of the developments of this particular investigation, and pass some law providing a penalty for those making reckless charges involving State officials and institutions.

During the investigation Governor Harris received many letters from various sources, inquiring whether or not it was safe for children to be in such an institution in view of the charges made. The investigation proved that these charges were absolutely without foundation and Superintendent Jones was vindicated.

Wednesday's Dispatch had the following:

"In accordance with the suggestion of the Board of State Charities, the governor's office on Wednesday afternoon sent to Attorney General Wade H. Ellis two affidavits which were filed in connection with the investigation of the charges against Superintendent Jones of the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb

"One of these is the affidavit on which the investigation was based, made by James Tetlow, in which he makes a number of charges of which, it was found when he took the stand, he knew nothing whatever.

"The affidavits are simply turned over to the Attorney General 'for his consideration,' but it is likely that he will take some action on them if he concludes there is no chance to convict of perjury, as it is known the governor feels very strongly on the subject of making unsbstantial charges which not only trifle with the names of women, but cast reflection on public institutions for learning The charges go to the most remote corner of the State and have a tendency to belittle the State and its ability to care for its wards. The governor thinks persons bringing such charges should know there is truth in them, instead of simply repeating a lot of gossip and libelous scandal, and making affidavit to it all as facts."

Harley Goetz came to Columbus last Sunday to remain, for he has secured a place to work in a tailoring establishment.

Messrs. Stottler and Callaway, of Cleveland, and Ezra Hedges, of Ashville, were visitors here Sunday

Dr. and. Mrs Earhart left the Institution Monday for Clermont County. Later they will go down to Hot Springs for the Doctor's health, and on returning will reside in this city, near the Ohio State University.

The Columbus branch of the Gallaudet Association held a meeting last evening in the library of Institution, with the following present: Messrs. Patterson, McGregor, Greener, Schory, Charles, Zorn, Ohlemacher, Misses Lamson, and Zell. Miss Edgar and Mr. Zell were the invited ones.

Mr. Charles delivered an address on Cuba, going over its affairs since it became a republic, and dwelling upon the recent intervention by this government upon its rule. Quite an interesting discussion followed, upon public and private education.

Misses Zell and Lamson next entertained the meeting with a dialogue—Mark Twain and the interviewer—Miss Zell taking the character of the humorist. It proved a very laughable farce and was heartily enjoyed

Some minor business received attention next, after, which the meeting ajourned to November 29th, when officers for the ensuing year will be chosen.

Howard Barnes, who was working in a Springfield, O., piano factory, had to leave the place. He is now employed in Newark, as a presser. By the way, he was married October 13th, to a hearing lady.

John Greiner, who was working for a firm in Newark, has gone back to Zanesville, and is working in a tailor shop, where Eugene White is employed.

Mr. August Beckert has gone to Zanesville, and is working in the tailor shop under the supervision of Mr. Albert Horn.

WEDDING BELLS

GLINES—PACKARD.

The evening of October 24th, witnessed a large and brilliant assemblage at 6 Dearborn St., Salem, Mass., the occasion being the wedding reception of Miss Attie Bertha Glines, of Beverly, and Captain Philo Frank Packard, of Salem, son of the well known deaf-mute Evangelist, P. W. Packard, in whose honor a number of deaf people were invited.

The Captain has evidently inherited his father's energy and perseverance. Four months ago, he took the severe examinations required for the rank of colonel on the Army Reserve list of the United States, which he successfully passed, receiving his certificate June 27th. This was pronounced, by the Army and Navy Journal, not only a high honor, but an unusual one.

He has now attained a different kind of honor, but no less deserved and gratifying, in winning as his bride a woman so lovely and amiable. She was as pure and sweet as the white roses she carried and whose buds looped her veil, while the soldierly bearing of her husband was much remarked upon.

The house was appropriately decorated for the occasion with the radiant foliage of Autumn, and the happy pair received in a corner of the parlor

The gifts, displayed in an upper room, were many and costly, representing, in cheques, glass and silverware, several hundreds of dollars. In the brilliantly lighted dining-room, ice cream, cake, and coffee, were served, while, in the library, fruit punch was dispensed by several young ladies. In this room, also, the guests signed their names.

All this was entirely conventional, but something not conventional, yet very delightful, occurred when the members of Company I, Eighth Infantry, Lynn, who had been keeping guard outside, filed in to do honor to their captain. They were in uniform, a strong and stalwart group, and quickly showed a substantial proof of their regard, in the elegant cabinet which was wheeled into the room, and, in a felicitous speech, presented to Capt. Packard. They evidently love and respect their commander, and he as evidently deserves it.

Soon after this, the guests began to disperse, wishing long life and much happiness to the newly-wedded Captain and his beautiful bride.

The Object of Going to School.

Most boys think that the reason they are sent to school is to get an education, and that if they learn their lessons sufficiently well to pass the examinations and to finish the prescribed course of study and be graduated, they will have that education and be ready for the business of life. But the object of the best schools is not simply the book learning to be gained, but to give to a boy's spirit, mind and body the best moral, mental and physical training which he is capable of receiving, so that when school days are ended a boy shall be equipped with a healthy and active body, a mind with alert perceptions and well-trained reasoning faculties, and a moral nature whose will is strong enough to govern both mind and body perfectly. There is a great deal the boy can do to help his school to do it; and the way he can help is by his conduct When a boy behaves well, he always plays his fairest and studies his best, so that his mind, body and spirit are all being trained together.—Selected.

Mr. C. W. Carraway, a deaf-mute of promnience in Mississippi, who was brought before the public last year on account of a shooting affray and confined to a hospital for the insane, recently escaped from the hospital and was run over and killed by the cars.—Ill. Advance.

A. H. NORRIS, Agent.

Recently, the police of this city arrested an unknown man, who was wandering about in a demented condition Later it was found that he was unable to hear, speak, read or write. He was locked up, pending an investigation. In his cell he attempted to commit suicide by butting his head against the bars, and he was removed to a padded cell. Who he is, or where he came from, is still a mystery. However, some of the older members of the police force think he is a man who was sent to the insane hospital from here many years ago. Several members of our silent community have been to see him. and have talked to him, but while he seems to understand them, he makes no effort to reply. He is still held, and will probably be sent to the insane hospital shortly.

Samuel Gottleib Gottenbacher, expert shoemaker, globe-trotter, etc., was last heard from at Terre Haute, and seems to be headed for St. Louis.

The postal authorities will certainly have to hire extra carriers, if the deluge of post cards that are hitting Indianapolis from Globe, Arizona, does not stop soon. The cause of it all is, Harry Phillips, who recently left Indianapolis to accept a position in Globe.

Mrs. F. N. Harrison, who is now in Terre Haute, expected to pass through here, en route home, in the near future. It seems that F. Napoleon will not be able to come home to vote, as he originally intended.

MICHIGAN CITY

The deaf of this city take pride in the fact that there are no "bums" among their number. All are prosperous wage earners, and many own their own homes.

Chas. Cload found it necessary to go back to the moulding room at the car shops. The erecting shop did not agree with him.

Wm. Hayes expects to move into his new home, on the south side, before cold weather.

George Root took in the wonders of "White City" at Chicago, recently. At last accounts he was still alive, but wondering where all that money went.

Harry Arnot and family, expect to visit friends and relatives in Indianapolis soon.

Birthday Surprise Party

A very enjoyable surprise party was recently tendered John T. Campbell at his home, 126 North College Street, Schenectady. It being the birthday of Mr. John T. Campbell. He received many nice useful presents. Among those present were: Miss Agnes Killeen, Willie Gallagher, Dora Labischner, Mr. and Mrs Getman, Mr. and Mrs. Johonas, Mr. Lefi, Mr. and Mrs. McLaugh, Mrs. Winnie Tulloch and Mrs. Joseph Getting, and many others.

The First Reunion of the Term.

OUR CHAPEL TALKS

Anecdote and Story.

From our Regular Correspondent.

Saturday evening last, at seven o'clock, the first monthly reunion of this season was held in the boys' and girls' sitting-rooms. Vernon S. Birck and Miss Bucher were the pupils on the committee with, Misses Burchard, Barrager, Buckingham and Hall as assistants. Capt. Birck was absent on account of being called to a party which was held at his home in honor of his brother's birthday. Accordingly, the next oldest members of the High Class, Miss Ethel Howe and Carl Lautenberger, were detailed to act in place of the above mentioned person as committee. Games of post-office, gossip, pinning Buster Brown's ties, etc., kept all busy. Some preferred to dance after playing games and some took to talking, but at the end all remarked that they had an excellent time. As to when the next reunion is to be held, and its probability of being more enjoyable than this one, remains to be seen. The smaller pupils were bundled off to bed at eight o'clock, and at nine the older pupils hied themselves to bed, tired but happy, and were soon in the land of dreams.

Prof. Isaac B. Gardner had possession of the platform Sunday morning, while Dr. Fox in the afternoon, laid particular emphasis on his remarks on the results of people not being able to master their tongues. The threatened situation of the United States relating to the fact that the people in California had kept the Japanese children from receiving the same educational advantages as American children received at places, was another of his remarks. After Dr. Fox's sermon, the usual Sunday parade took place, and the usual crowd of spectators were at the fence at the first call. Besides the battalion parade, the dress parade was gone through to the satisfaction of the officers. A photographer who represented the New York Herald took some snapshot photographs of the boys while drilling.

During last Saturday afternoon, some of the boys remarked upon the scarcity of boys in the yard, when a crowd came out of the boys' court yard and told the rest to go with them. Of course, they wanted to know the reason, and then curiosity was soon satisfied and that to their delight. The answer was that the boys would have their turn at their spiral firescape, just as the girls had their turn last week. In less than a minute the boys' courtyard was entirely deserted, and from the largest boy down to the smallest youngster all enjoyed the slides. Anxious to beat the record made by some of the girls, some of the boys ran upstairs to get ahead of the girls in going down the most, and some claim that they have exceeded the record made by the girls. The sliding lasted about an hour, and the boys were sorry when the time came to stop it.

Prof. Wm. G Jones, Fanwood's famous story teller, was nowhere to be seen Saturday and Sunday nights, at the reunion and in chapel for his usual weekly story. Most of the boys thought that they would have no chapel, when they saw from the sitting room that the chapel was lighted up. All began to wonder what would go on, but their curiosity was satisfied when the boys and girls were in. Principal Currier took Prof. Jones' place, and announced that if there was no objection on the part of the pupils, he would have a sort of Endeavor Class formed, and the members of the Class would give readings when they met again in the chapel. The Principal also said he thought that it would be a good plan to assemble once a month. Principal Currier then asked 1st Vice President Birck to take the platform and give the pupils an idea of what automobiling in the country was like. Then Second Vice-President Lovitch took the platform, and then followed the rest of the officers until George Gompers was requested to take the platform. His imitation of Mr. Jones was most striking and much enjoyed. The girls were then called upon for stories, but the members of the feminine sex cleverly excused themselves. But it is hoped they will take the platform at the next meeting, minus any excuses. Principal Currier then asked all if they liked the plan, and all responded with an unanimous "Aye."

The Principal then gave us a full account of the 44th University Convocation of the State of New York, which had been held in Albany, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the week just closed. The Topic was "The Practical Administration of School affairs in this State."

Mr. Michael Mehling, has been appointed to take the place of Thomas E. Bulger. Mr. Mehling is drum-major of the Thirty-second Regiment Band and is well known in "music society."

Sergeant Anton Tanzas, having nothing to do, took advantage thereof and went down to the Polo Grounds, to witness the football game between Princeton and Cornell. He says the game was very exciting and held his undivided attention until the end, and came back with a beaming face and announced the score of the game as 14 to 5 in favor of the Tigers.

Mr. Walter S. Crittenden, who for fourteen years was Assistant Steward of this Institution, but who for the past seventeen years has been connected with a banking house in Wall Street, was an interested visitor last Friday, and was warmly greeted by those who knew him.

Dr. Charles Augustus Stoddard, President of the Board of Directors, made a tour of inspection of all the departments of the Institution last Friday. He examined the provisions for exit in case of fire, and, although in his 75th year, slid through the new spiral fire-escape. Even as he is head of the Board, so he leads in being the first Director to make the three-story trip down the spiral way to safety, nine seconds being the time.

The Institution was visited last week by Mrs. J. Bates, of Clifton, S. C, and Mrs. M. E. Pier, of Jersey City. Mrs. Bates' uncle was Mr. R. C. Spring, a graduate of the Hartford School and the first teacher of the deaf at the South Carolina Institution at Cedar Springs. Her aunt was Miss Jane Milhench, a graduate of the New York Institution, who was married in the Chapel of the old 50th Street School, to Mr. Spring, on the 14th of November, 1850.

Mr. Rotherham, the instructor in physical culture, is quite happy just now. The reason is that his wife and daughter arrived last Monday, from Glasgow, Scotland, on the Anchor Line Steamship Columbia.

Wedding Bells

FLICK—ROUSE

One of the most attractive weddings of the autumn was that of Miss Amelia Bolton Rouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Rouse, of this city, to Rev. George F. Flick, of Washington, formerly of Ohio, which took place yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at Glengyle, the country home of the bride's parents, by the Rev. Oliver J. Whildin, curate of Grace Church and Missionary to the Deaf of the South. Rev. Chilton Powell, D. S., Rector of Grace Chruch, assisted. The home was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, and an orchestra hidden behind palms played the wedding march and rendered a soft accompaniment during the ceremony. The bride looked unusually sweet and winsome as she entered the room on the arm of her father, and she was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Clarence S. Gore, as matron of honor, and Miss Roberta Hempstone Rouse. The bride wore an empire gown of white satin and duchess lace and carried pink chrysanthemums. Mrs. Gore was attired in the gown she wore at her own wedding, a creation of white duchess satin with point lace, and Miss Rouse wore a white princess dress.

The groom's best man was Mr D. H. Lewis, of the Theological Seminary of Alexandria, Va., and the ushers were Dr. C. S. Gore and Mr. John G Rouse. Though both the bride and groom are deaf, they nevertheless are accomplished, the former being a graduate of the Clark Institute. Both understand the sign and lip language, besides being able to articulate very distinctly, and the ceremony was performed in the usual manner, that is, by lip reading.

The wedding was a family affair, only the members of the immediate family being present at the ceremony, but at a reception held later there were a large number of callers to extend their congratulations to the happy pair. The wedding presents were both numerous and beautiful, one of particular interest being a mother-of-pearl button that was worn on the wedding vest of the bride's great-great-grandfather. This had been made into a brooch, and on the button was engraved the dates 1756—1906.

Rev. and Mrs. Flick will make a Southern tour, and then take up their residence at 1806 U Street, Nothwest, Washington, in which city Rev. Mr. Flick has charge of the Trinity Mission for Deaf-Mutes.

Among the out-of-town guests were:

Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Smielau, of Williamsport, Pa.; Rev. and Mrs. Whildin, Misses Anderson, Brooks and Barry, of Baltimore, Drs. Gallaudet, Fay, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant, Miss Peet, Mr. Wurdeman, of Washington, and Mr. Fitzgerald, of New York. Misses Wiegand and Newman attended the wedding reception which followed and which was a very handsome affair.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

"The time of year has come when, in accordance with the wise custom of our forefathers, it becomes my duty to set aside a special day of thanksgiving and praise to the Almighty because of the blessings we have received, and of prayer that these blessings may be continued.

"Yet another year of widespread well-being has passed. Never before in our history, or in the history of any other nation, has a people enjoyed more abounding material prosperity than is ours; a prosperity so general that it should arouse in us no spirit of reckless pride, and, least of all, a spirit of heedless disregard of our responsibilities; but rather a sober sense of our many blessings, and a resolute purpose, under Providence, not to forfeit them by any action of our own.

"Material well-being, indispensable though it is, can never be anything but the foundation of true national greatness and happiness. If we build nothing upon this foundation, then our national life will be as meaningless and empty as a house where only the foundation has been laid.

"Upon our material well being must be built a superstructure of individual and national life lived in accordance with the laws of the highest morality, or else our prosperity itself will in the long run turn out a curse instead of a blessing.

"We should be both reverently thankful for what we have received and earnestly bent upon turning it into a means of grace and not of destruction.

"Accordingly, I hereby set apart Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and supplication, on which the people shall meet in their homes or their churches, devoutly acknowledge all that has been given them, and to pray that they may in addition receive the power to use these gifts aright.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixt.

"Done at the City of Washington this 22d day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six, and the independent of the United States the one hundred and thirty-first.

Wedding Bells.

(Arlington Observer, Oct. 20.)

On Monday evening Miss Henrietta Witschief, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Witschief of 419 Hickory Street, Arlington, was married to Walter L Hillebrandt, of 149 West Eighty-seventh Street, New York. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride in Arlington, the Rev. Dr. C. F. Krotel, pastor of the Church of the Advent, New York, officiating. The bride was given away by her father. Only intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. The wedding gown of the bride was of crepe de chine en train, trimmed with duchesse lace. Her bridal veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

The decorations of the house were green and white. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served by a Newark caterer. Many and beautiful gifts evidenced the esteem in which the young couple are held by their friends and relatives. The groom's gift to the bride was a set of pearl pins, containing about fifty pearls. A check for $1,000 and a completely furnished flat at 1135 Madison Avenue, New York, were the gifts of the bride's parents, while a silver service of thirty-six pieces was among the other more noticeable gifts. Mr Hillebrandt has a position with Tiffany & Company of New York, and after a honeymoon spent at the Palmer House, Lakewood, the young couple will take up their residence in that city. Their friends took good care that they received a hearty "send-off" with rice, old shoes, and duly decorated and tagged carriage.

Some of the out-of-town guests present were: Congressman and Mrs. W. S. Bennett, of New York, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Mrs. Frank Arnold and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Hutton, Miss Anna Schulte, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hillebrandt and daughter, the Misses Etta and Louise Hillebrandt, all of New York; Graham Witschief, Newburg; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Witschief, Port Jervis; Henry Witschief, Lafayette, Pa, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrenz, of Newark.

The Gallaudet Memorial.

It is proposed to create a memorial to the late Rev. Thomas Gallaudet, D.D., by the erection of a Parish Building for St. Ann's Church for Deaf-Mutes. The present Church is situated on 148th Street, just west of Amsterdam Avenue, and is built some twenty-five feet back from the line of the street to permit the erection of such a building as above indicated, which will form a facade to the church edifice and be a center of religious and social life amongst the silent peoples. Dr. Gallaudet hoped during his lifetime to see the erection of this building, which would have completed the church with which his name has always been associated. This was not permitted, and it is suggested as a most fitting memorial to him that this work be now undertaken. St. Ann's Church is used wholly for the deaf-mutes.

The new building will occupy a plot of ground about forty-five feet along the street front and twenty-five feet in depth. It will be three stories in height, with a basement, and will be used for the social, religious and industrial needs of the deaf-mutes of New York. The amount required for "The Gallaudet Memorial Parish Building" will be about $30,000, and the building itself, in its position and purpose, will form a conspicuous monument to him whose life was devoted to the silent peoples. They themselves heartily endorse the memorial.
